A Global Network for Sustainable Development

What is IDFC?

The International Development Finance Club

The International Development Club (IDFC), founded in 2011, is a global network of 26 leading national, regional and international development banks from all over the world, of which 20 are based in developing countries.

IDFC members, working together to implement the Sustainable Development Goals & the Paris Climate agreement agendas, join forces as a platform to promote & leverage Sustainable Development Investment worldwide.

The IDFC is the largest provider of public development finance globally, totaling US$ 4 trillion in assets, with commitments above US$ 600 billion per year, of which US$150 billion in green and climate finance. The IDFC seeks to contribute to, and help shape and implement the international development and green finance agendas.

IDFC incorporates a new perspective and substantial voice towards the international development agendas.

IDFC incorporates a new, global perspective and substantial voice towards the international development agendas, so far largely shaped by UN Institutions and Multilateral Development Banks, by (i) integrating local practitioners' expertise with experience in regional and international cooperation and (ii) building on and further increasing through shared experience the knowledge base of its members.

Answering global climate change and development challenges, IDFC members contribute with their expertise in financial structuring and significant public and private resources mobilization both at the international and domestic level. Moreover, in line with national development policies, IDFC members support governments in facilitating policy reforms to create an enabling environment for further investments.

Our Mission

Play a leading role in Global Development & Climate Agendas

Development banks play a crucial role in promoting sustainable development and helping transition to low-carbon climate-resilient development pathways. With their medium and long-term vision, their field experience in financing development, and their capacity to leverage private investment, development banks are uniquely positioned to provide supportive signals and contribute to the convergence of expectations for sustainable development within and across economic systems.

IDFC offers a practical example of a collective action to shape an interconnected world through a global cooperation that produces results. This outlines the role that such a network of development banks play on the global stage, intermediating resources, providing expertise, and fostering co-operation commensurate to the challenges of sustainability.

By pooling decades of experience in innovative leadership on development and climate finance, IDFC aims to position itself as a leader in achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and in implementing the Paris Climate Agreement.

IDFC fully embodies the form of partnership action endorsed in 2015 at the UN conference on Financing for Development in Addis Ababa and called for by the SDGs.

Our objective

Catalyze Finance for Sustainable Development

By bridging developing and developed countries as well as domestic and international finance, IDFC plays an active role in reinforcing the financial architecture for sustainable development. IDFC is well positioned to mobilize the trillions of investments required and play a catalytic role in operationalizing the SDGs.

IDFC members can leverage international and local capital demonstrating to markets the opportunities, risks and potential returns of sustainable investments, making a difference for the peoples they ultimately serve.

IDFC represents the new fundamental pillar in financing for development, co-operating in full complementarity with the other pillars of development finance (multilateral entities and the private sector) and key partners championing low carbon, climate resilient and sustainable development throughout the world.
